THE AMANDA YOUNG FOUNDATION

National Meningococcal Day

Kiddy Canter!

There was a young girl named Amanda. Amanda loved horses and one of her friends was Melrose Mare.

One day when Amanda and Melrose were playing at the farm they noticed that some of the other horses were sick with a bad bug.

"My head hurts," said one. "My muscles ache," said another.

Melrose Mare said she would search everywhere and stamp out bad bugs wherever she found them so that no-one else would be sick. Amanda said "that's a great idea!"

ouch!

Be aware of bad bugs that can make you sick! Do not share anything that has been in your mouth!

Kiddy Canter is a free event organised by The Amanda Young Foundation for National Meningococcal Day.

Child care centres will be provided with merchandise and resources to run a range of fun horse themed activities to teach children how to stamp out bad bugs and prevent meningococcal disease.
